Mr. A. A. Wilbon rode to that city the fine sorrel mare owned by his son, John R. Wilbon, and hitched the animal to the rack on the east side of the square. In the afternoon, Mr. Wilbon, having concluded his business, went for his horse, preparatory to going home, but did not find it. His suspicions were im-mediately aroused, and, upon inquiry, learned next day that a man by the name of Stewart was seen six miles north of the city riding his horse. The next intelligence of Stewart and the stolen property was from Dresden, Ten-nessee, where he sold the animal for twentyive dollars. On Monday last Mr. John R. five dollars. On Monday last Mr. John R. Wilbon learned of the whereabouts of Stewart, and telegraphed to the sheriff of Weakly county to arrest him, which was promptly done. Mr. J. R. Wilson, accompanied by Officer Ramseur, left for Dresden by the next train, and there secured the thief and his horse. They took Stewart to Jackson, and, upon trial before Esquire Persons, he plead guilty to the warrant charging him with horse-stealing, and only praying the mercy of the court for a small bond. His bond was fixed at two thousand dollars, and failing to secure it, he was sent to jail to await trial at the next term of the law court.

Trial at the next term of the law court.

—A Tennessee exchange of late date states that a horrible murder occurred at Boydsville, Weakly county, on Saturday last, as follows: "A man, whose name we could not learn, murdered in cold blood, and without any provocation of which we are aware, an innoffensive citizen by the name of Yarbrough. These two men were engaged in conversation, and without even any hot words, the unknown man took hold of Yarbrough by the lapel of his coat, pushed him brough by the lapel of his coat, pushed him back, and drawing a pistol shot him through the thigh, inflicting a painful wound. The aggressive party then retreated to the rear of the store-room, where the difficulty took place, and near the only aperture of egress in that part of the building. Yarbrough being unarmed, and this door being his only means of escape, rushed upon the Texas. The fact of its being loaded on flat cars indicates that the shipments are so large that; the road has not a sufficient stock of box-cars to accommodate the business. It occurred to me as being very singular that St. Louis should control so much of the Texas cotton, while Memphis does not get a bale. The rate of freight from all Texas points to Memphis is thirty cents a bale less than the rate from same points to St. Louis. The rate from Memphis to say New York, eleven hundred and sixty-four miles, is seventy-five cents, and from St. Louis, one thousand and sixty-four miles, seventy cents per one hundred. B. And an endless and indescribable wriety of vantages are about even. The markets of St. Louis and Memphis are thus placed upon their merits, and the question is as to which can offer this business the greater induce-ments. It would seem, Messrs. Editors, that this is a matter of importance to Memphis. I

Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.—I Cor. xiii. 1, 2.

but he says he cannot control his belief and that he cannot believe them. Now, my friend, you are a minister of the gospel. Tell me what does your bible teach you will be the fate of that educated Englishman when he dies?" "Well," replied the minister, "he that believeth not will be forever damned." The doctor then said: "Now, let us suppose, there is an Indian chieftain who was an obedient and truthful son, a loving and faithful there is an Indian chieftain who was an obe-dent and truthful son, a loving and faithful husband, an affectionate father, and a just, honest and patriotic citizen, who, as a man or ruler, had been remembered with venera-tion and loved for his many virtues. That man never heard of the bible, never heard of Christ as a mediator between him and the heard of the christian eligion, never heard of the white man. But, in all the moral virtues, he was the counter-part of the Englishman. Now, what does part of the Englishman. Now, what does your bible teach you will be the fate of that man when he dies?" "Well," said the minister, "he did as well as he could; he could not believe, because he had never heard of the bible; and it would be great injustice to punish such a man. He will be judged according to his moral life." "Then," said the surrounding country. M.
